GERMANY AGAIN

Those people who are so set against the Germans in all their actions do not notice the fact that England has adopted the unheard-of, unknown and unrecognized right to stop any neutral ship on the high seas, that they think is carrying food or war munitions to Germany, take it into port and confiscate the cargo. The United States protested against such action, but the protest had no weight with England and the practice goes on until our foreign trade is practically destroyed, except with England and her allies.

Our people seem to have forgotten that grass disregard of the rights of neutrals.

This question is largely like every other: The person who first gets to the public with a plausible story that can be refuted only with logic and is not capable of being actually demon- strated as being untrue, is sure to gain the public confidence and the other side has hard sailing from that time on. That is Germany's predicament.

Those persons who were opposed to Germany before the Lusitania disaster are still that way and those who favored the Germans are still that way. There is argument on both sides and it is the privilege of every person to take his choice, just as the editor of the Chronicle has done and will continue to do.

We fully believe the war was forced upon Germany by England. Not that England did it in an open way, but by indirection because Germany was making too great inroads on English foreign trade.

Few people seem to remember that Germany has not a single natural barrier to protect her territory and that whatever protection she has must come directly from force of arms. That is a fact that cannot be success- fully refuted. So long as that condi- tion remains just that long will the Germans keep up their military system because they must or cease to be a free nation or more than a third rate power. No nation will knowingly or willingly enter upon any system that means national destruction or efface- ment among the nations of the world.

It will not be and no person need expect it.

Those who are advocating war be- cause of the sinking of the Lusitania are worse than they charge the Ger- mans with being for they would need- lessly sacrifice many times more lives without just cause.

This is the time when the people of the United States should be thankful that we have as mild a mannered man as we have in the presidential chair.

The legislature has adjourned and the people are very glad. We heard a man say a few days ago that this is the weakest legislature that has met in many years. In one respect he was right; that of real constructive legis- lation. In the matter of petty partisan legislation and wasteful extravagance it leads any for years.

BRAVE AND CHIVALRIC DEED

Alfred Vanderbilt has done more to dorn his own life and make distin- guished and honorable the name he bears than anything he could have done with his vast wealth and the talents which nature had bestowed upon him. When the Lusitania went down he gave his life to save that of a dazed and

FAMILY AVOIDS
SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With Thedford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whittaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble.

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Thedford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medi- cine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sick- ness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught."

Thedford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regu- late weak stomachs, aid digestion, re- lieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.

helpless woman.

With a life belt securely fastened on his body he was about to plunge into the water when he observed the appeal- ing face of a woman beside him. With a smile on his face he surrendered his life belt to the woman and went brave- ly to his death with the other unfor- tunate ones. He did all anyone could and more than many would have done—he gave his own life to save that of another.

If another Vanderbilt brought re- proach upon the name by a spirited and unworthy retort, "damn the people," this younger, braver and bet- ter one of the name wiped out that miserable stain when he proved that a Vanderbilt could be as gallant and brave, and as self-sacrificing, as any man whoever gave his life for his country or accepted death for himself that another might live.

This man had everything that would cause life to be pleasant and desirable. He was young, robust and wealthy. He was honored by those who knew him. He had everything that makes men want to live out their allotted time. There were no comforts he did not have. There were no pleasures he could not enjoy, yet when it came to the test he gladly surrendered all these with his life to save despairing and helpless woman. He had ample oppor- tunity to save himself, but when con- fronted by an appealing woman he gal- lantly surrendered his opportunity to her and met his death as bravely and heroically as any man who ever died that others might live.—Tennessean.

MOON HAS NO EFFECT.

Scientists Have Found That "Planting in the Moon," Does Not Effect Crops.

Scientists are now convinced that the moon has no more influence on crops than it has upon the temperature or the amount of rain or the winds or any other weather element.

The growth of plants depends upon the amount of food in the soil and in the air that is available for them and open temperature, light and moisture.

The moon obviously does not affect the character of the soil in any way, neither does it affect the composition of the atmosphere. The only remain- ing way in which it could influence plant growth, therefore, is by its light.

Recent experiments, however, show that full daylight is about 600,000 times brighter than full moonlight, yet when a plant gets one one hundredth part of normal daylight it thrives little better than in absolute darkness.

If one one-hundredth part of normal daylight is thus too little to stimulate a plant, it seems quite certain that a 600,000 part cannot have any effect at all.

It is therefore a mere waste of time to think about the moon in connection with the planting of crops.

The moon, say the scientists, has

ECONOMY
and
CONVENIENCE

Are two points to consider in buying merchan- dise as well as selling produce. When you come to town to have your bill filled, remember we can furnish you almost any thing you need.

PRODUCE

If you have Wool, Eggs, Chickens, Bees- wax or any other produce to sell, we will buy it at the highest market price.

NO SPECIAL PRICES

Remember, we have no "special prices" for "special" days, but sell at the same price every day in the week, either for cash or produce.

NO LEADERS

We sell you nothing at or below cost and expect to make it up by charging you more for something else than it is worth. Our prices, all the way through our large stock, in every department, are made with a small profit to us.

"Quick sales and small profits" is one of the fixed policies of our business.

BUSINESS INCREASE

Our trade for April, 1915, at our Crossville store alone was $2,200 more than April, 1914. In fact, our business has always been on a steady increase. This is one of the best evidences that our prices and service to the public meet with their approval.

WE SHIP

Every day, large quantities of merchan- dise to many points east and west on the Tennessee Central railroad to mer- chants as well as individuals. This is another evidence that our prices are as cheap or cheaper than others

DRY GOODS

Sales in our Dry Goods department have almost doubled this season over last. The reason is we have a much larger and better assorted stock of good and up-to-date merchandise in this line, at prices that are very reasonable.

MILLINERY

This department of our business has been entirely satisfactory this season. It has been under the personal manage- ment of Miss Lavenja Miller, who is known all over the county as good au- thority on styles. She can at all times help you to select a hat as well as dress good that will be suitable to you as well as stylish. Don't fail to consult her be- fore buying.

GROCERIES

We have just placed an order for 4,500 pounds of the kind of coffee that we sell for 15c. Part of it is now in transit. We buy it direct from the importers and roasters. We are sure you cannot buy as good coffee anywhere else for the price. We have sold it for three years. It gives satisfaction.

Meat Market and Lunch
Counter

We sell beef, pork, sausage, corned beef, souse meat, boiled ham, bread, pies, cakes, cold drinks, etc. Always have lots of it on hand. Mr. Loshbaugh has charge of this department. He knows how to serve you right. His prices are more reasonable than you have been in the habit of paying.

CRAB ORCHARD

The stock at our Crab Orchard store is almost as complete as at Crossville only not quite so large. Nearly everything is sold as cheap.

"TO DO A LITTLE BETTER BY YOU THAN OTHERS," is a motto that we live up to every day.

We appreciate your business and will continue to try to merit the same.

nothing more to do with this than it has to do with the building of fences, the time for killing hogs, or any other of the innumerable things over which it was once supposed to exert a strong influence.—Weekly News Letter of Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C.

(In spite of the above and all that has been or may be said in the future, it is very probable that there are many people who will continue to have faith in "planting in the moon" until death claims them. The number seems to decrease very little, if any.—Ed. Chron- icle.)

DAD AND HIS PAPER.

Sometimes dad says the paper somehow ain't got up just right

And does a lot of knocking when he reads it Friday night.

He says there ain't a blame thing in it worth while to read

An' that it doesn't print the kind of stuff that people need.

He throws it in the corner and says it's on the bum—

But you'd ought to hear him holler when the paper fails to come.

He reads about the weddings and snorts like all git out

And he reads the social columns with a most derisive shout;

He'll read about the parties and he'll tuss and fret and groan, And says they print the paper for the women folks alone.

He's always first to grab it and he reads it through and through

And he doesn't miss an item or a want ad, old or new.

He says "they don't know what we want, them durned newspaper guys;

I'll take a day off sometime and go and put them wise."

If editors were as wise as dad they'd sure be going some—

But you oughta hear him holler when the paper fails to come.
